McNeill: Nearly ready

Deconstruction on McNeill continued on Tuesday, March 13 with the removal of stucco and other materials below the line where the house will be cut from its foundation of 90 years.

The dining room pop-out (March 13 issue) is cut away.

Wooden supports ("cribbing") hold the house so it can be put on steel I-beams until ready for wheels to be placed under it for transport.

Then McNeill is freed from the foundation.
The small pop-out at left was originally a cold closet for food. McNeill also had a closet for a built-in ironing board; we'll soon know if it is still with the house.

McNeill up on wheels, moved forward on the lot and now completely off its foundation. The stair railings have been removed, exposing the exterior wall where there is no stucco.
Nearly there…

Meanwhile…

St. Patrick is on the move.
The houses are expected the morning of Wednesday, March 21! The operation starts around 5-5:30 am at Jackson Beach, you are also welcome to join us at Sun Rise II between 8 and 11 am (If visiting Sun Rise on Wednesday, please park on Grover west of Hunt St.)
